The rainy season in Florida seems to have set in and it is making the crops boom.

How is President Roosevelt going to negotiate peace between the Russians and Poles?

Germany and France are still sulking, but don't do anything but growl at each other.

The red flag of revolution is now unfurled in Poland and blood is flowing all over that Czar accursed land.

If the junketers to the Philippines will only dispose of the Island to some one before they return, it will be a good job.

Anarchy should have no place in this fair land of ours. It is only a class of outlaws that caused the organization of the vigilance committees of the West in years past.

The son-in-law of the King of Belgium has been offered the crown of Norway. Why not give it to one of the husbands of American heiresses who are out of a job?

Stand by the laws and support the Constitution, no matter what comes, and our State will be all right. If we have bad laws, repeal them. But so long as they are laws, let them be obeyed.

The Ocala Banner is urging the location of the State University at Gainesville, and the fact that Frank Harris, editor of The Banner, has been for years on the board of trustees will give added weight to his views on the subject.—Pensacola Daily News.

Every citizen of the United States regrets the serious illness of Secretary Hay and will hope for his speedy recovery. As a diplomat he has shown marked ability, and in all affairs where he has been engaged for this country, his diplomacy has been proven the equal of the ablest men of Europe.

Generally speaking the streets and sidewalks of our city are in excellent repair, although there may be a few sidewalks that need looking after. Do it in time and remember that every effort put forth and dollar spent to improve our city's appearance will be worth two in the eyes of people who come here to look over property with a view to purchasing.

There was a time when labor unions were organized for the good of the members and not to support a few walking delegates. Even today there are many good union men in the various organizations who are doing all they can for the betterment of themselves and the world at large. But such men as Eugene Debs, who, because he can't run everything to suit himself in one union, rebels and formulates another, can never do much to help the tradesmen of this country. Keep the union out of politics and select the best men when you vote, the same as the Knights of Labor did when they were most effective, and the union will carry strength. Vote for Debs for president and you will always have a candidate.

ALL MEN ARE ACTORS.

Shakespeare gave expression to a profound psychological truth when he wrote:

"All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players."

Nine-tenths of the transactions of the human race are purely play acting, says The Wall Street Journal. How many people show their real selves to the rest of the world? They wear false wigs and masks and assume characters not their own. In a majority of cases this is done unconsciously or with no intent of actual deception. We simply can't help concealing our real thoughts, often our real characters. We put on the outside a fictitious man. The real man underneath is not disclosed. Some are better actors than others. Some assume virtues they have not, and are thus hypocrites. Others mask their goodness with a mask of cynicism and brusqueness. Very few indeed have the simplicity and genuineness to appear what they really are.

It would make an interesting study to investigate what effect play acting has in business transactions. Certain it is that our great men of affairs are great largely because of their gifts of acting. They know how to assume many parts and can change from one to the other quickly. Watch a thoroughly trained leader in business in his office from day to day and notice the succession of characters which he takes. It is almost as good as a theater to one who loves a psychological study.

As great actors succeed in producing an effect upon certain emotions, causing tears and then laughter, so these actors in business are able by their infinite art to produce an illusion even more perfect than any shown on the stage. Often the greatest successes in life are obtained by means such as these. It does not necessarily follow that these successes are not deserved, or that they do not advance the interests of the world. Moreover it does not necessarily follow that the men adopting these methods are, in any gross sense, either hypocrites or scoundrels. They may, indeed, for a moment be so absorbed in the characters they are assuming as almost to believe in themselves, just as an actor sometimes loses himself in his part.

There is, however, danger in any too free exercise of the power of acting on the stage of business, just as there is danger in the practice of mesmerism. Undoubtedly one ought always to strive as hard as he can to keep his true self turned to the world. Simplicity and truth are the ideals always to be aimed at. It seems to us that this age is distinguished by a decline of mimic art on the stage, and a great advance of the mimic art in the actual business of life.

MODERATE LIVING.

There is hardly a city in the State but what has more or less of a building boom on, and it looks as though there would be some lively hustling in every section the coming winter. The people who come to the State for the winter—to remain here to escape the cold weather of the North—are many of them in ordinary circumstances and cannot afford to pay high rates for board; hence, there is a demand for moderate priced boarding houses and hotels.

Many people go to California for the winter because they can live very cheaply there, and although the railroad fare is higher, they make up the difference in living expenses. There is no reason why people cannot live in this State, and live well, at moderate prices. This must be done to get the people who seek a warmer climate for their health in winter who can't afford to pay fancy prices.

St. Lucie county will soon be on the map. A new one of that county is being made.

Summing up the situation, regarding the weather and the crop, The Cotton Trade Journal says "we must conclude that while the crop at large has made fair reasonable development during the week, the prospects do not encourage the hope of anything like a large yield over the whole area, such as was had last year. Very material improvement is possible, but we are now approaching the period when the crop usually deteriorates instead of improving. The next bureau report, which will cover the crop up to about the present time, ought to show some moderate advance over the June average, but not any very considerable improvement. In the meantime, should present torrential rains continue a few days longer, we must be prepared to expect alarming accounts from the western and central sections."

Gainesville merchants are after trade. They have large stocks of goods and are sending out invitations to the people of the surrounding country to call and look them over, and buy if the prices suit. A glance at some of our large stocks will convince any fair-minded person that our dealers are up to the times. In the furniture line the Gainesville Furniture Company must be conceded to surpass any store in Central Florida. Other dealers are well stocked and if you patronize Gainesville merchants you will find all lines superior to many other towns which are larger in population. Patronize the home dealer and you will seldom, if ever, regret it.

The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are, without perhaps any exception, the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sums he never possessed and can never pay, the rich to be squeezed of all he possesses, while those only can hope to escape who are members of families sufficiently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor should he attempt extortion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the jealousy and avarice of the sultan. Even the governors of the provinces suffer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they squeeze the agriculturist and the peasant so are they in turn squeezed by the sultan and his viziers, and should they fail by constant presents to maintain a good opinion at the court they can expect only imprisonment and often death.

NATURE SPARES

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.
